CORE BUSINESS INTERESTS

Scale Value and Range: Compares you with other business people. 50 is an average score, 55 or more is High, 45 or less is Low.

Personal High: Those core business interests of special significance for you.

57 HIGH range	Personal High	Application of Technology: High scorers are intrigued by the inner workings of things and like to find better ways to use technology to solve business problems. They enjoy work that involves planning and analyzing production and operations systems and redesigning business processes.
51 AVERAGE range		Quantitative Analysis: High scorers gravitate toward and excel at "running the numbers" to figure out business solutions. They might also enjoy building computer models to do things like determine optimal production scheduling or perform accounting procedures.
54 AVERAGE range	Personal High	Theory Development and Conceptual Thinking: High scorers love to think and talk about ideas and the "why" (rather than the "how") of strategy. They may have been drawn to an academic career and may enjoy building business models explaining things like industry competition or market trends.
53 AVERAGE range	Personal High	Creative Production: High scorers like brainstorming or inventing unconventional solutions and relish the early stages of projects. They enjoy making something out of nothing, whether it's a product or process. High scorers thrive on newness.
39 LOW range		Counseling and Mentoring: High scorers love to help employees, peers, or clients grow and improve. They may also be drawn to organizations that provide products or services that you see as having high social value. High scorers derive satisfaction from helping others succeed, and you enjoy feeling needed.
35 LOW range		Managing People and Relationships: High scorers enjoy working with and through people on a day-to-day basis to accomplish the goals of the business, whether it's building a product, making a sale, or winning a new customer. They may gravitate toward line-management positions or sales careers.
44 LOW range		Enterprise Control: High scorers love running things, having ultimate decision authority, and making things happen. They find great satisfaction in determining the
